

AAUP package is now placed in regents' laps

With its vote to accept a proposed settlement concerning pay and benefit increases Tuesday night, the UNO chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) must now wait until Sept. 18 for the NU Board of Regents to accept the proposal.

The AAUP voted 134 to 10 in favor of accepting a settlement package that included a minimum average salary increase of 10.4 percent of the average instructor's base salaries, retroactive for the 1980-81 school year, and a minimum average salary increase of 10.1 percent for the 1981-82 year.

If the Board accepts the AAUP-approved package, it will mean the end of two lawsuits filed by the AAUP against the regents and the end of one-and-a-half years of negotiations between the two entities.

It will also mean an end to the wage freeze imposed on AAUP members by the regents and will bring union instructor's wages up to par with non-union instructors on other NU campuses.

Details of the package, for the year 1980-81, included:

- a 10.23 percent across-the-board pay increase, divided as follows: a $1,064 equal-dollar raise for all academic year appointments; a $1,293 equal-dollar raise for all fiscal year appointments; a 5.11 percent increase of each member's 1979-80 base pay.

- a 16 percent increase for promotions, consisting of: a $978 award for promotion to full professor for fiscal year appointment; an $800 award for promotion to full professor for academic year appointment; a $733 award for promotion to associate professor for fiscal year appointment; a $600 award for promotion to associate professor for academic year appointment.

- fringe benefit increases, consisting of: reimbursement for health insurance premiums; payment of retirement benefits (at 6 percent) on salary increases.

- interest on fringe benefits and salary increases at a rate of 14 percent.

- retroactive payment of summer session differential.

Details of the package, for the year 1981-82 included:

- an 8.07 percent increase of each member's 1980-81 base pay for satisfactory performance.

- $165,000 (approximately 1.94 percent) in merit raises to be divided among the colleges in direct proportion to the amount of UNO payroll allocated to each college. (All merit monies to be awarded at the college level by the vice chancellor, subsequent to consultation with the faculty.)

- approximately .09 percent increases for promotions, consisting of: a $1,077 award for promotion to full professor for academic year appointments; an $807 award for promotion to associate professor for

Hoover: study of options needed

Child care program is shelved

By Marzia Jones

A child care program targeted to open on campus in January, 1982 will be delayed pending further study.

Richard Hoover, vice chancellor of educational and student services said "there's a substantial amount of investigation and study that needs to be done."

Concerns

Hoover said he has "several concerns" about the proposal as it now stands.

Heading his list of concerns is determining if a need does exist. "I haven't yet seen evidence of demand," he said.

Florene Langford, UNO Student President/Regent, who submitted the proposal to Hoover, cited a study conducted by the Women's Resource Center. It projected that 554 students need a program for their children. According to the study, a projected 415 students would use an on- or near-campus facility.

"There's a very large demand. If that figure of 415 isn't a large demand, I'd like him to tell me what is," said Langford.

Langford said that Hoover had earlier approved

Omaha senators favor high-rises

By Patty Connerley

A majority of Omaha's state senators favor building parking garages to relieve UNO's parking crunch.

Nine of the 11 senators contacted by the Gateway said they would probably support UNO efforts to find funds for the high-rise structures. (Sen. Marge Higgins and Sen. Vard Johnson could not be reached for comment.)

Sen. Glen Goodrich, District 20, said he will be UNO's chief lobbyist for the parking garages. He plans to introduce a bill this winter in the legislature to finance the garages.

"Opposition to parking garages is traditional. Past legislatures have not wanted to finance such structures with general fund dollars," he said.

Goodrich said his plan will be "innovative and creative . . . but flexible enough to be acceptable to the rest of the legislature." He declined to discuss the nature of his proposal, not wanting to "give the opposition a chance to kill it before it gets to the floor."

In a speech August 24, Chancellor Del Weber called the parking situation at UNO "nothing short of critical." He said parking garages were needed on both the east and west sides of UNO. "Anything short of these structures, Weber concluded, "will only be a partial solution to our problem."

Weber has also said that future building construction is tied to UNO's ability to solve its parking problem.

Although most of the Omaha delegation said the high-rise structures would help alleviate the parking problem, some had reservations about the funding and possible neighborhood opposition.

Goodrich estimates the cost of each structure would be between $3 to $5 million, or $4,500 per stall.

And in the past, the Citizens Action Association, a neighborhood group, has opposed any westward expansion of the university.

Sen. Bernice Labedz, District 5, said: "I have a tendency to vote for them (parking structures), but I want more information. I think UNO should get its fair share, depending on how much it costs, that is." She added that the attitude of neighbors must also be taken into

No-charge medical, legal advice is available to UNO's students

Full-time physician's assistant will doctor Mondays-Fridays

UNO's Student Health Services (SHS) will soon have a full-time physician's assistant, according to Barbara Hewins-Maroney, coordinator of special programs.

A contract between UNO and UNMC providing for the assistant should be signed in about three weeks, she said. As of last week four persons had been interviewed for the position.

A physician's assistant is responsible for writing prescriptions, diagnosing minor medical problems, and referring students to other doctors if necessary, said Hewins-Maroney.

SHS is now open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. weekdays with the part-time assistant available Tuesdays and Fridays from 8 a.m. until noon. After the new contract is signed, SHS will be open from 8 a.m. until 7 p.m., with the full-time assistant available every day until 5 p.m.

A part-time nurse will also be available at SHS from 2 to 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday during the fall and spring semesters.

Hewins-Maroney said the 1981-82 SHS program will be operating with a $44,800 budget, compared to last year's budget of $41,000. SHS's funds are supplied by UNO's Student Government.

SHS provided health service to approximately 60 persons per day during last year's fall and spring semesters, said Hewins-Maroney, and to approximately 20 persons per day over the summer.

Legal aid is again available on part-time basis to fee-payers

The Student Legal Assistance Service (SLAS) is again providing free legal assistance for eligible UNO students this fall, according to its director, Frank Forbes.

Forbes, a professor of law, and four other attorneys are available at least 12 hours per week to advise students with legal problems.

The UNO SLAS is basically an educational service, he said, and the attorneys are there to advise students about their legal rights.

Although their fees would normally be about $60 per hour, attorneys on the SLAS staff do not receive remuneration for their services.

Staff attorneys are not intended to provide representation in any litigation or arbitration on the behalf of students, said Forbes, but the service does make referrals when necessary, though not to law firms associated with any of the attorneys on the staff.

The SLAS, located in the Student Government offices at the student center, has been very busy, said Forbes. Many of the problems brought to SLAS involve landlord-tenant disputes, traffic tickets, and paternity suits.

As a result of the many landlord-tenant questions, the SLAS published a bulletin to educate students about their legal rights as renters.

"Landlord Tenant Disputes," written by Forbes, outlines the legal ramifications of certain lease agreements and offers suggestions on how to handle disputes with landlords.

The SLAS averaged about eight appointments per week during the spring, 1981 semester, according to Sue Foley, Student Government secretary. That figure does not include the numerous phone calls and walk-in appointments, she said.

According to Forbes, approximately $20,000 worth of free legal assistance was provided for students during the last fall and spring semesters.

Funds totaling $2,500 were budgeted for SLAS for the 1980-81 school year, and the fiscal 1981-82 budget will be about the same, according to SLAS estimates.

This year, however, not all students will be able to use the SLAS.

Students who elect to receive a refund from the Student Government portion of their UPFF fee become ineligible for special services, including the SLAS, according to Foley.

She said Student Government initiated the policy to ensure control over its services.

By taking a refund from the Student Government part of the UPFF fee, a student is actually taking back money used to finance programs like the SLAS, Foley said.

UNO's Professor Burch dies during S.D. holiday

Dr. Genevieve "Ginger" Burch, 49, senior research associate at UNO's Center for Applied Urban Research, died last week in South Dakota after suffering an acute asthma attack.

According to her husband, Dr. Hobart Burch, a professor of social work at UNO, both Burch and himself had spent Saturday canoeing and walking near Springfield, S.D. When they returned to their motel, Burch said, his wife suffered an asthma attack and had difficulty breathing. The rescue squad was called, but she died en route to a hospital in Tyndall S.D., he said.

Burch was the principal author of a recent major study of health care needs in North and South Omaha. She came to UNO in 1976 from Fairfield University in Connecticut where she was assistant professor of sociology.

Some of the other projects Burch was involved in while at UNO included an evaluation of the first year of a national juvenile justice program, an evaluation of an alcohol counseling program in some Catholic schools and direction of a day care training program in rural Nebraska.

account.

Sen. Karen Kilgarin, District 7, said "I would look at the situation with an open mind, but the fiscal impact must be addressed before the project is deemed feasible."

Two senators, Peter Hoagland of District 6 and Larry Stoney of District 4, remain undecided.

Stoney views the parking problem at UNO from a financial perspective.

"I realize there is a tremendous problem at UNO. But look at it as a revenue problem — how long a period of financing would be involved and the number of dollars needed," he said. Stoney added that he doesn't want to make a snap judgment and would need more information.

Hoagland said he had not seen any of the details of the parking structures nor had he conferred with the chancellor or any university officials. "I'm really undecided," Hoagland said. "It's not good turning Elmwood Park into a parking lot, but I could be persuaded either way on this question."

One senator who rejected the whole idea of parking garages was Ernest Chambers, District 11.

"Let students walk," said Chambers. "Walking will give them sound bodies and minds." He added that he is not currently satisfied with the quality of education. "Until the level of education now available to students is raised, I won't consider putting any money into concrete."

Comments from other senators contacted include:

David Newell, District 13: "I've argued in the past with Weber and others of the administration that parking is a more pressing need than a new science lab building or a performing arts building . . . once that need is met, then we can look at other needs."

Steve Wiitala, District 31: "I'm a graduate student at UNO, although my legislative duties have forced me to put my studies on the back burner for a while. I can remember getting up early to find a parking spot by the ravine. Parking is a constant, persistent problem for students and should be solved."

Gerald Koch, District 12: "I've always been a strong advocate of solving the parking problem at UNO. I don't think the parking structures will destroy the surrounding neighborhood. I hope we are through talking and finally ready to do something about the parking."

Walt Duda, District 14: "I really don't know much more about the parking problem than what I've read, but there sure needs to be a solution. Until I find out different, I'm in favor of parking garages."

Carol Pirsch, District 10: "If you ever had to park on campus, you would realize what a problem parking is at UNO. I think it would be a good idea to get the other senators to come to UNO to see for themselves the crucial need for the garages."

such a program. She said he told her it was a good idea and was needed on campus.

"Why did he ask Jean (Kucirek, administrative assistant for educational and student services) to help with the proposal if he had no intention of going along with it?" said Langford.

Options

Hoover said he wants to study all options before making a commitment. Those options are a cooperative, a day care center, or a day care/pre-school combination.

Langford said that by instituting a cooperative program instead of a day care center, expenses would be minimized. It would also take at least three years to meet the state, federal and county regulations for day care facilities, she added.

Another reservation cited by Hoover concerns costs and funding. The proposal indicates that the university would provide funds for a full-time supervisor, operating expenses and equipment, facility maintenance and utilities, and work-study students. Student Government (SG-UNO) would provide program equipment and supplies.

Funds

The proposal does not outline specific budget requirements. "I need to know where the source of funding comes from and the dollar amounts," said Hoover.

Hoover said he asked SG-UNO to supply him with exact budget needs and sources of funding, but he hasn't received the information.

"I'm not certain if the proposal is from Student Government or from Florene. I need evidence Student Government will support it," he added.

Langford said that Hoover is using the argument to "get out of the validity of having a service like this on campus." She added, "If he (Hoover) wants it in writing, we can pass a resolution. Student Government didn't want to just pass a resolution, but go beyond that and come up with a feasible proposal."

Hoover said he will appoint a committee to conduct the study. "I'm not adverse to the idea of child care nor will I accept it carte blanche," said Hoover.

Free speech gets less free, more costly

By Nicholas Von Hoffmann

The next time you get indignant about something that's going on in your town, say a zoning fight or one of those Board of Education brouhahas, think twice before you send off a steamy letter to your local editor. You may get sued for libel.

Writing in "The Nation" (June 6), Eve Pell has done a round up of libel and defamation suits arising from what until recently had been considered ordinary citizen activity. Example: "... a development company planning to build a condominium in Beverly Hills sued the president of the League of Women Voters, as well as the leader of a successful anti-development initiative, a local citizen and no less than 1,000 John Does. The offending act: a ballot initiative and two letters to the editor; the damages sought: $63 million. The company claims that libelous and slanderous statements caused it to lose the condominium project and its reputation."

If some company comes into your neighborhood with a project that you fear may ruin property values and the community's liveability, you may be better off quietly swallowing your losses instead of standing up to protest. Your gesture may involve you in a lawsuit which you have to defend with a $200-an-hour lawyer.

It's a no-win situation for non-millionaires. If they successfully defend, they'll be broken, nervous wrecks by the time the years of lawyering and lawyers' bills are done with; if they lose, it's just the house, the car, the $3,000 in the money fund and the cat that get auctioned off to pay for the judgment.

Under threat

Organizations have as much to fear as individuals. The use of the John and Jane Doe gimmick as defendants in the suit is part of the problem. By suing an organization and its officers plus hundreds of members of the Doe family, the unnamed people in the organization live under the threat of being named in the suit at any time, dragged into court and bankrupted by legal fees.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is being sued by the San Francisco Police Officers Association because the NAACP called a press conference to accuse the gendarmerie of brutalities and other naughtiness.

There can be no meaningful public debate if only true charges must be aired, because in politics and civic affairs true and false is pretty much what you are able to convince the majority is true or false. Free speech gets to be pretty expensive if you run the risk of losing your home and the clothes off your back every time you get up to indulge in it. What is an organization like the NAACP to do if the price of complaint is bankruptcy? They might as well confine themselves to raffling off Toyotas and donating the proceeds to the Red Cross.

40 year debt

Or there is the now rather celebrated case of the West Virginia greenie, Rick Webb, who was sued by a coal company because he contended in his newsletter and in a complaint to the Environmental Protection Agency that the mining operations were polluting a river and causing the trout therein to go belly up. Eve Pell reports the man makes $4,800 a year and he's being sued for $200,000. If the guy loses at those wages it will take him 40 years to pay off the judgment, provided he doesn't eat any more than an IRA martyr in a British jail.

Equally as troubling as multimillion-dollar corporations and golden-rich jingle-jeans using their money, power and their fancy, tax deductible lawyers to coerce people into shutting up and getting out of civic life, is the absence of a mass media furor over what may, Lord save us, become a trend. Aside from the fact that letters to the editor are going to get pretty dull if people are afraid to write anything but letters of praise, what is the average media executive's idea of the First Amendment? Is it just for them? Is it just for the billion-dollar corporations that own the mass media?

We get ears broken with noisy assaults from the mass media when a court demands the name of a confidential source from a reporter-employee of a big news company. That we are told has a "chilling effect" on freedom of the press. So it may, but it's nothing compared to the freezing effect on free speech when some working person is sued for popping off at a meeting of the Board of Education.

The lords of this land have forgotten: When people have their mouths corked they fall back on more explosive ways of venting their opinions.

Tim proceeds with super Sooners stardom saga

Last week, when we left Tim Ashford, all 5 feet 7 inches and 147 pounds of him, he was dreaming that Barry Switzer, the head coach of the University of Oklahoma Sooners, approached him in the UNO weight room and offered him a football scholarship.

He is still asleep.

Our story resumes with Ashford asking Barry, "Why did you give me this scholarship?"

"Well ... because it is your dream," Barry replied.

"Oh!" I said.

A broad grin spread across Switzer's face, then he turned around and walked out of the UNO weight room.

The next couple of months passed rather slowly, and I graduated in December. On January 7, 1982, I packed my bags to go to Norman, Oklahoma to play football and receive a graduate degree.

My family drove me to the airport. I quickly checked my luggage through the check-in gate and boarded the plane. A few minutes later, I was waving good-bye to my family from a first-class seat in a 727.

The plane took off from Eppley Airfield and two hours later made a safe landing in Norman. When I got off the plane I did not claim my baggage because an assistant coach was to pick my baggage up from the airport later. I caught a cab and went directly to the university to register.

When I arrived on campus, I walked around for about 45 minutes before asking someone where registration for incoming students was taking place. They directed me to the administration building which was located in the middle of the campus. I walked in the administration building and found myself at the end of a long line of freshmen and transfer students registering for classes. (All the returning students had pre-registered before they left for Christmas vacation.)

The line moved slowly; however, I waited patiently. When I finally came to the front of the line, I informed the lady that I was on an athletic scholarship.

"Is it a gymnastics scholarship?" she asked.

"Nope," I replied.

"Well, then is it a wrestling scholarship?"

"Nooooope," I said.

"It's either a basketball scholarship or a track scholarship," she said.

"No," I said harshly. "It's a football scholarship."

She stared blankly at me for a few minutes. Then a smirk crossed her face. The smirk turned into a grin and the grin turned into a smile.

The smile grew and grew until it spread from ear to ear. After the smile could grow no larger, she laughed loudly at me. "Aaaaah ha ha!" she screamed loudly enough for nearly everyone in the room to hear. "They must be forming a midget football team!"

Everyone in the huge, crowded room (about the size of the UNO Fieldhouse) focused their attention on her as she continued to laugh loudly and make obnoxious small-people jokes.

"HEY!" I shouted.

Then I calmly added, "Just check your athletic records for Tim Ashford."

She stopped laughing and making jokes and started giggling to herself while she thumbed through the student enrollment cards. She was thumbing through the football players' enrollment cards when her fingers stopped and her face became serious. She pulled an enrollment card from a box, stared at it for a minute, then looked up at me with apologetic eyes. "Oh my," she said, and then became silent.

When she became silent, the people in the room quickly turned their attention back to whatever it was they were doing before she exhibited her outrageous behavior.

Now it seemed like we were the only two people in that huge room, and she stared at me like I had the power to dismiss her from her job.

Tim's super Sooners stardom dream continues

Then she said in a low voice, "Yes sir, Mr. Ashford, we have your records and everything is in order."

"Just give me my dorm keys," I said.

"Sir," she said, "here are all your keys and instructions in this envelope. Your apartment is located on the east side of the campus and your car is parked in lot G."

"What do I need instructions for and how did I get a car?" I asked.

"I don't know what your instructions are for," she said. "Your scholarship, your BEOG, and your student loan money paid for your car and your apartment. That's all I know."

"Well, thank you," I said. I put the envelope and my class schedule in my pocket and walked out of the room.

When I got outside, I quickly opened the envelope and read the instructions. The instructions said: "You are the owner of a car parked in lot G, stall 237. Your apartment is No. 2 and it is located at 222 University Drive. Everything is paid for. Each month on the 5th, you will receive $350 cash in your locked mailbox. This money is for any of your expenses. Produce on the field and you will be all right. Congratulations on becoming a Sooner. A friend."

I walked to lot G and I saw parked in stall 237 a 1982 blue Riviera with personalized Oklahoma license plates. Printed on the plates was the name TITO.

"Damn," I said. "He (Switzer) never gets my name right."

When I got over my anger, I unlocked my car and climbed in. Inside the car was an AM-FM stereo cassette player and a carrying case for cassettes. I opened up the case and inside it there were tapes by Michael Henderson, Phyllis Hyman, Teddy Pendergrass, Quincy Jones and The Jacksons.

I wondered how they knew I liked this kind of music.

When I finished looking at the tapes,

I opened up the glove compartment. I found three credit cards in my name. One was for gas, one was for a local department store and one was a Mastercharge card.

I put the keys in the ignition and drove off in search of my apartment. An hour later, I found it. I parked my car in the garage reserved for apartment No. 2 and walked up to the top floor of a two-story building.

I unlocked my apartment door and went in. It had white carpet, two bedrooms, two bathrooms, a bar, a fireplace, a sliding glass door which led to the balcony, a color television with a VTR, and modern furniture. Everything was coordinated in Oklahoma's colors of red and white.

In the middle of the floor was a big red football-shaped rug with white letters which read "O.U. No. 1." A color picture of the '81 Sooner squad was hanging over the couch.

I went into the kitchen, opened up the refrigerator and it was full of food. I fixed myself a sandwich, sat down and looked at my class schedule. Although it was only Thursday, when Monday rolled around I wanted to know exactly what I was supposed to be doing.

On Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays I had an advanced basket weaving class at 10 a.m. in the administration building, and my macrame class met at 1 p.m. in the Arts and Sciences building. On Tuesdays and Thursdays I had square dancing in the gym at 9 a.m., and at 11 a.m. I had weightlifting with the assistant football coaches in Sooner Hall. It seemed like a pretty good schedule because I was only carrying 12 hours.

I was settled in my apartment and ready for my classes to start on Monday, January 11, 1982.

Sorry folks, we know you are dying for more, but due to the length of this article you will have to read the third and final part of Tim Ashford's dream of becoming an Oklahoma Sooner in next Wednesday's Gateway.

Heeeee—Ya!... Dale Lee Craig broke his own record in board breaking for Muscular Dystrophy over Labor Day — 7,369 boards in 13 hours.

Board smashing aids charity

By Canasta Pershing

At 3:14 p.m. on Labor Day, Dale Lee Craig accomplished what many may have believed to be impossible.

Using only his hands and feet, Craig had broken 7,369 boards in 13 hours for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Besides the challenge of surpassing his previous record of 5,022 boards in 18 hours, 36 minutes, there was a special reason for undertaking such a feat, said Dale Miller, instructor at the Omaha Karate School.

Dan Darling, a friend of Craig's, had a brother, Pat Darling, who died from MD last year, said Miller. It was to him and the thousands of other MD sufferers that the effort was dedicated, Miller said.

With the help of dozens of Tae Kwon Do students, pledges were obtained that should total over $5,000.

Although it isn't known if Craig will repeat his achievement, the possibility that the event will occur every year is real. The American Tae Kwon Do Association (ATKDA) is considering organizing a national board break for MD.

Miller said Craig, also an instructor for the school, trained for the attempt for five months with the help of John and Ed Byrne. He said Craig has been training in Tae Kwon Do for 15 years, and holds a 4th degree black belt.

The boards used on Labor Day were 10-feet by 1-foot by 1-inch pine.

The quality of wood is important, said Miller. The degree of dryness affects how the wood breaks, he said. That became a problem a few hours after Craig began — it started raining.

Week of Sept. 13-Sept. 19, 1981

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19) — Accent your mate, partner and associates. Good time to entertain small, intimate groups in your home. You are creative now, so add the finishing touches to projects you've been working on — polish and refine.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20) — Review the past few months' activities to evaluate the successes and failures. Change any negative patterns you discover in the process. A problem in the home could be dealt with and solved immediately — don't let it build up.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20) — You could get involved in an exciting project now. Take care of correspondence that is overdue — letters, phone calls and visits. Entertaining at home on the weekend is favored. Invite parents and family members.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22) — Your activity cycle is high and the time passes very quickly. Be sure to stick to schedules and allow enough time for tasks. Financial matters are changing and you must carefully evaluate your expenditures — stick to your budget.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Be calm and methodical now and organize your weekly schedule. An unexpected social invitation brings you joy. Be kind and understanding with mate or partner. If both of you are stubborn nothing is resolved, so compromise a bit.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Let others know about your talents and abilities in a discreet way. Praise and recognition may come unexpectedly. Romance could blossom for the unattached. Make efforts to pay off loans and collect money owed to you.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Enjoy periods of nostalgia and reflecting on past events, but waste no time in regrets. You work best in a cooperative manner now, so conform to the standards of the group. Double-check schedules if traveling.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) — Conflict between your career and personal life can best be handled by diplomacy and consideration. Not a time to be critical and bossy. Use your intuition to evaluate a real estate investment that comes to your attention.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 19) — Important communications could disclose some sort of secret information that is beneficial to you. Discuss a financial matter with an expert in the field. Strive for friendly relationships with competitors and partners.

Spirited students can win beer for football yells

Noise, yelling and cheering can be found in abundance at any football game. Starting with tomorrow's game against Northwest Missouri State, any group of Maverick supporters that does those the best will win a 16 gallon keg of Miller beer.

Tony Young, a UNO cheerleader, said it's an attempt to get people to come to the games and show school spirit.

The winning group will also have a roped-off section on the 50-yard line for the next game, he said.

Miller is also donating a 20-foot banner which reads "We support the Mavericks and Miller's supports us."

Judges will include the cheerleaders, their sponsor, Mary Lou Gouttiere, faculty, and members of the athletic department.

Winners will be announced the following Monday. They will be responsible for picking the keg up, putting down the deposit, drinking the contents, and returning it, said Young.

By Mark Martens

UNO's stingy defense stifled a potent Northeast Missouri State offense enroute to a 24-12 victory in the opening game of the 1981 football season Saturday at Al Caniglia Field.

A crowd of 9,300 watched as the Mavericks used several outstanding plays to thwart drives by the Bulldogs and counter a slow start by the newly-installed wishbone offense.

Head coach Sandy Buda was especially pleased with the way the defensive secondary played.

"They really played well," he said, "especially when you consider that Northeast Missouri's quarterback (Bob Zumbahlen) is a pro prospect. We had a lot of passes completed against us, but their receivers really paid the price. They knew they got hit."

Pettit hit FG

The Maverick offense could muster only 65 yards the first half, but scored on a 23-yard field goal by sophomore Mark Pettit to lead 3-0 late in the first quarter.

The score came after the secondary, consisting of cornerbacks Steve Agee and Chuck Spencer, and safeties Tim Slobodnik and Mark King, began to take command.

After a UNO fumble that left Northeast Missouri knocking at the door deep in Maverick territory, Agee intercepted a Zumbahlen pass and returned it 24 yards to start UNO on a 66-yard drive that resulted in the field goal.

On the second play after the ensuing kickoff, Slobodnik picked off a Zumbahlen pass and scampered 33 yards to make it 10-0 after the extra point by Pettit.

Slobodnik stars

In addition to the touchdown interception, Slobodnik also recovered a fumble, broke up three passes, and had seven tackles, including a quarterback sack. For his efforts, the junior from Omaha Bryan was named the defensive player of the week.

Northeast Missouri scored in the second quarter on a 15-yard touchdown pass from Zumbahlen to wide receiver Rich Otte, who made a circus catch to cut the lead to 10-6.

In the second half the wishbone finally began to click for UNO and the defense held the Bulldogs to 100 yards, compared to 161 yards in the first half.

Sophomore quarterback Randy Naran replaced starter Mark McManigal early in the third quarter, and on his second play from scrimmage sprinted 42 yards for a touchdown.

"It's hard to believe," Naran said. "This was my first varsity game, and that was the first time I had ever run the option."

Offensive show

Naran took the snap from center, rolled to his right where he received a block from halfback Larry Barnett, and faked a pitchout to rid himself of the last defender on the play.

The offensive show wasn't over until late in the fourth quarter when Dave Soto slanted over the left side for 14 yards to complete a 47-yard drive and give the Mavs a 24-12 lead. The senior fullback was the leading ground gainer of the game with 101 yards on 10 carries which included a 37-yard burst in the first quarter that led to the first score of the game.

Northeast Missouri scored its second TD after recovering Russell Green's fumbled punt. Zumbahlen scored three plays later on a 1-yard plunge. Zumbahlen was 17 of 36 for 192 yards and three interceptions.

The last interception came with 3:10 left in the game when King picked off a pass in the end zone to ice the game.

Not McManigal's fault

Despite the offensive showing by Naran, neither Offensive Coordinator Chuck Osberg or Buda would speculate on who would start Saturday against Northwest Missouri State, the Mavs' first road game.

"Mark (McManigal) was doing a good job while he was in there," Osberg said. "There were other things that went wrong also. I planned to use Randy (Naran) more in the first half, but we didn't have the football enough." The Mavs ran just eight offensive plays in the second quarter.

Buda seemed to agree with Osberg and gave credit to Northeast Missouri.

"The way we played in the first half wasn't all the quarterback's fault," said Buda. "We didn't block the way we should and there was some poor execution and (continued on page 10)

Mavs to endure first road test

By Ernie May

The Mavs will be trying to run their record to 2-0 Saturday when they travel to Maryville, Mo., for a game against the Northwest Missouri State Bearcats.

The 1:30 p.m. contest at Rickenbrode Stadium will be the fourth meeting between the two schools since Coach Sandy Buda came to UNO in 1978. Buda holds a perfect 3-0 record against the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association school.

Overall, the Mavs are 5-3-1 against the Bearcats. Their last loss to Northwest Missouri was a 9-0 setback in 1947. Last year UNO defeated Northwest 35-10 at Al Caniglia Field.

"Northwest is a good team," said Buda. "They run from the 1-formation and split-backs. They're predominately a running team so we've been adjusting our offense and defense based on their favorite plays."

Buda said the offense will probably get off to another slow start. "We will be guessing again on offense," he said. "With the wishbone we don't really know how they will defend us. It will take us a quarter to get things going again."

The Bearcats are led by quarterback Brian Quinn, a 5-foot-11 sophomore who had 69 yards rushing and 62 yards passing in Northwest's 9-7 win over Pittsburg (Kan.) State last weekend.

Also leading the Bearcat offense are running backs Greg Baker and Dale DeBourge. Baker, a 6-0, 200-pound junior, rushed for 66 yards on 16 carries last week. As a sophomore, Baker compiled 436 rushing.

DeBourge, a sophomore, gained 55 yards against Pittsburg State on 19 carries and scored the only touchdown, pulling in Quinn's 18-yard strike.

The defense is anchored by 6-0, 240-pound Charlie White. White, a noseguard, had 13 tackles, including one for a safety which provided the winning margin for the Bearcats last weekend. He also recovered a fumble in the game.

According to Buda, the only changes in the Mav lineup are on defense. Dave Thoreson will start in place of Mark King at free safety and Gary Schnebel replaces Jerry Skow at right tackle. Both King and Skow are sidelined with injuries suffered in last Saturday's game.

Since this is a non-conference game, Buda said the NCC travel roster limit of 45 is not in effect and he plans to take between 55-59 players.

The game will be broadcast by KOIL radio (1290 AM) with Jim Kelter on play-by-play, and Steve Rosenblatt and former UNO quarterback John Smolsky providing color commentary.

UNO kickers finish 3rd

The UNO Soccer Club traveled to Seward, Neb. last weekend to compete in the Concordia Invitational Tournament. The kickers finished third in the tournament, but showed a lot of promise for the upcoming conference season.

In Saturday's first round game, the UNO club dropped a 2-1 decision to UNL. Bill Jackson scored the goal for UNO, but it was not enough as UNL scored late in the game to seal the victory.

UNO faced Northwest Missouri State in Sunday's consolation game and came away with a hard-fought 1-0 victory. The Mavs consistently outplayed NWMS, but couldn't score until Andy Steele put in a shot with 14 minutes left in the game. UNO then held off Northwest Missouri for the rest of the game to claim third place in the tournament.

Verne's Views

By Verne McClurg
Director of UNO Campus Security

Permits May Be Stolen

The transferable parking permit, which hangs on a string from the inside rearview mirror, is becoming a "hot" item. Although the number of stolen permits is relatively small (16 thus far), considering the total number purchased, it behooves each of you to examine the need for a transferable permit.

If your permit is stolen, report it to Campus Security immediately. We do give a list of stolen permit numbers to Security officers. Also, you will be required to purchase another permit at the current fee.

Individuals found with stolen permits on their vehicles will be subject to a $25.00 Violation, possible disciplinary action, and suspension of parking privileges on the UNO Campus for one year.

Familiarity Breeds Contempt?

Not necessarily so, when parking on campus. Throughout my discussions with various members of the University community, and as evidenced by the number of Violations written, many individuals are not aware of the location of parking lots on campus (or off in the case of St. Margaret Mary's and First Christian Church Lot). In addition, they are not aware of the different types of parking (Faculty-Staff, Student, Sub-compacts, etc.).

Do yourself a favor and study the campus map inserted in the Parking Regulation pamphlet. Take a tour of the campus parking lots, during the weekend when it is quiet, and locate all the lots where you can park. You'll help yourself by avoiding parking tickets for parking in unauthorized lots.

Tidbits

- A single-edged razorblade, applied firmly, will help you remove your last year's windshield permit.
- Don't forget to sign-up for a Carpool. Forms are available at the Student Government office, Information and Campus Security.

Stingy defense sparks Mavs

(continued from page 8) some poor decisions made. "By the same token, you've got to give Northeast Missouri credit. They had some good strategy to stop the wishbone. They gambled and stopped us at times and they gambled and got burned," said Buda.

Not Disappointed

But Osberg wasn't disappointed in the way the offense, which piled up 276 yards, performed. "I thought it went pretty well," he said. "The kids did a good job of adjusting, especially in the second half, and I'm sure they felt a little extra pressure with the new offense."

In the second half, the Mavs went to a goal line offensive scheme, in which the quarterback keeps the ball more. According to Osberg, this helped Naran's performance.

"They were blitzing their safeties and it helped us come up with a couple of big plays in the second half," he said. "Randy (Naran) was just in the right place at the right time."

Osberg was also pleased with the number of running backs that saw action, and the second offensive line which played much of the second half.

For Slobodnik, who is a transfer from UNL and hadn't played in a game since 1979, the big interception was anticipated.

"I was waiting for him (Zumbahlen) to throw; I was hoping he would throw it," he said. Bulldogs' receiver Vernon Buckner fell down on a cut for the sidelines and Slobodnik stepped in front of him to make the play.

"I didn't know he had fallen down," Slobodnik said. "I just grabbed the ball and ran as hard as I could."

Osberg said Saturday's game at North-west Missouri will be a tough contest for the Mavs. "They'll be quite a bit like Northeast Missouri," said Osberg. "They come at you with different looks, defenses, and stunts, and they really get fired up when they play at home."

Naran's play keys Mavs

By Roger Hamer

Although it took a while to gear up, the wishbone offense unveiled by the UNO Mavericks Saturday night proved successful. The offense showed the big play capability and ball control logic behind the wishbone.

It didn't take long for Randy Naran to show his ability to run the offense. Inserted in the game while the outcome was still in doubt, the sophomore quarterback raced around right end for a 42 yard touchdown run on his second snap from center.

Naran went on to direct the Mavs to a 24-12 win over Northeast Missouri State.

With the Mavs holding a 10-6 lead over the Bulldogs midway through the third quarter, Coach Sandy Buda pulled his starting backfield. In came Naran at quarterback, Larry Barnett and Terry Evans at halfbacks, and Scott Gilchrist at fullback.

This unit proved two things: One, that the wishbone can explode with big play capability and two, the UNO backfield has depth.

"I was a little nervous coming into the game, but I simply forgot about the pressure. On the touchdown run, I just had one defender to beat once Larry (Barnett) threw his block," said Naran. Barnett's block, plus a good fake pitchout by Naran created a one-on-one situation with the free safety. Once he turned the corner, Naran outraced the defense to the end zone.

A play which was nullified may play a big part in Naran's future at UNO. The Mavs faced second and long at their own 40. The Bulldogs gambled and blitzed. The offensive line picked up the blitz and Naran fired a 40-yard pass to Russell Green. Officials, however, ruled Green out of bounds and the pass incomplete. But the big play capability was there.

"They were blitzing, and the line picked everybody up," Naran said. "I spotted Russell along the sidelines and I knew he was going to catch the ball as soon as I let it go." The call drew boos from the capacity crowd of 9,300.

Reflecting on his performance, Naran was not overconfident about the possibility of replacing Mark McManigal as the starter. "Mark played well and has proved himself before. He just had a rough night. I don't think this will change the starting lineup but it's good to have two quarterbacks who can come in and get the job done."

Judging by the performance of Naran and the reserve running backs, the Mavs have established a reliable back-up to McManigal and a crop of top notch runners.
